Chicago Society Woman Who Was So Sick She Could Not Sleep or Eat, Cured by Doan's Kidney Pills.

When a woman's kidneys go wrong, her back gives out and every little task becomes a burden. She is tired, nervous, sleepless, run down—suffers daily from backache, headaches, dizzy spells, and bearing-down pains.

Don't worry over imagined "female troubles." Cure the kidneys and you will be well. Read how to find the cure.

Marion Knight, of 33 N. Ashland Ave., Chicago, Ill., member of the Chicago Federation of Musicians and a well-known club woman, says: "This winter when I started to use Doan's Kidney Pills I ached in every bone and had intense pains in the kidneys and pelvic organs. The urine was thick and cloudy, and I could barely eat enough to live. I felt a change for the better within a week. The second week I began eating heartily. I began to improve generally, and before seven weeks had passed I was well. I had spent hundreds of dollars for medicine that did not help me, but $6 worth of Doan's Kidney Pills restored me to perfect health."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Miss Knight will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address: Foster-McBarn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Sold by all dealers; price, fifty cents per box.

The Children's Theatre.

Mildred Seitz, the daughter of Don C. Seitz, of Brooklyn, N. Y., frequently visits Norway with her parents and is a favorite with the young people as well as the older ones she has met here. She has recently written for The Advertiser, the school paper of the Advertiser Academy, a story, "The Children's Theatre," that will be of interest to people who believe in charities that improve and make better instead of just relieve for the time, just tide over. Even doubtful things may be made for good if controlled by a skilled and artistic hand. This is the story:

Four years ago Miss A. Minnie Herts undertook to reform the Entertainment Department of the Educational Alliance, which is in the heart of the East Side, on Jefferson Street and East Broadway. Miss Herts had for a long time studied the ways of the East Side people, and knew their craving for amusement. The cheap music halls and theatres were the only means of entertainment they had, and Miss Herts believed that from these people, old and young alike, obtained wrong ideals. Then the idea of the Children's Theatre came to her. Of course there were many difficulties to overcome, but prominent people became interested in it. Playwrights gave plays, and managers stood ready to help. The greatest difficulty to overcome was the problem of securing actors and actresses. First-rate artists on Broadway, and even second and third-rate ones were far beyond the means of the Children's Theatre. At last the difficulty was solved. Why not have the children play for the children?

Notices were posted asking all who were interested to come to a reading of "The Tempest." A great many came, but it was difficult to choose persons to play the parts. At last arrangements were completed, and the first play given was "The Tempest." Never before was it so fearfully or wonderfully portrayed, but it marked a great beginning. It made the people of the Ghetto forget their sordid surroundings and gave them a glimpse of trees and flowers and outdoor life. The first regular matinee season began October, 1905, with the production of "The Little Princess."

Now the theatre is in full swing. They have regular seasons, and the plays change from time to time. Every detail with regard to stage setting and costuming is carefully carried out. The Children's Theatre has produced eight plays: "The Tempest," "As You Like It," "Ingomar," "The Forest Ring," "Snow White," "The Little Princess," "The Prince and the Pauper," and "The Prince and the Pauper."

I was fortunate enough to attend a performance of the latter. The work the children do is marvelous. Except for certain set stage business, they are allowed to carry out their own impulses. The acting, though of course not up to the highest Broadway standard, is far better than that in the cheap theatres. The acting of the two little girls who played the "Prince" and the "Pauper" was wonderful. There is no lack of grace and talent among the children of the East Side. Besides the regular cast there are "understudies," and even two or three sets of "emergencies." There were no less than three hundred children in the cast of "The Prince and the Pauper."

Audience and cast alike is made up of children and young people who all day work in sweat shops or in stuffy offices. The scene shifters are boys sixteen or seventeen years of age, and they accomplish their work with a swiftness and quietness which would do credit to professionals. The orchestra is made up of boys and girls who for ten cents a lesson receive good instruction from teachers connected with the Alliance. Sunday, their one holiday, is the only day when they can be given, and to these warm hundreds of children. The theater accommodates seven hundred, but when a play is new thirteen hundred are packed in, while two thousand may be turned away.

Under the Sunday observance law these performances, which so far proved the greatest aid in making good citizens of the children of the Ghetto, have been stopped. But while the children suffer by this outrage, the grown people are benefited for immediately plays for them were put on. Three little one-act plays were given, "Hop o' My Thumb," "Comedy Royal," and "The End of the Way."

There are classes for studying the plays, and even the grown people have an opportunity to act sooner or later. The office of the theater is filled continually with children copying different parts. The wardrobe mistress is a girl eleven years old, and her word is law. She allots the most elaborate costumes and "jewels," once the property of Fanny Davenport, to those whom she knows will take the best care of them. Fanny has grown up with the theatre, as she made her first appearance when six years old as "Arlecchino" in "The Beggar's Opera." She puts the finishing touches to the costumes and helps the slowest child make a quick change and be back in the wings before her cue. A year of class study intervenes between each Shakespearean production. Now they are studying "The Taming of the Shrew." By the time it is presented next fall the whole East Side will be familiar with it. The results of this theater are many. By seeing and portraying fine characters the children form fine ideals. Then as each play is presented there is a great demand for the book. After the production of "The Tempest" one thousand copies of the play were bought by the people of the East Side.

Most people are familiar with the story of "The Little Prince" or "Sara Crewe." Those who are will know that the play opens with a birthday party given in honor of Sara. When the play was presented at the Children's Theatre, thirty children were chosen for guests of the party. When the time for dress rehearsal came many brought requests from mothers asking that the children be allowed to wear their own best dresses—gaily affairs, resplendent with lace and ribbons. Miss Herts persuaded them to let the children wear the simple white dresses with the colored ribbons provided for them. The mothers were so pleased with the result that thereafter the children's best dresses showed much more taste and refinement.

A high standard is set for the English speech, which is for the East Side the greatest stumbling block. When a boy is given a part the responsibility straightens his stooping shoulders and corrects his slouching gait. The clothes of the queen and court ladies are put on and off with the play, but the grace and dignity acquired become the personal characteristics of the player.

When the Theatre first opened the admission was five cents. Now it is ten. Just after it had been raised Miss Herts asked several boys in the audience if their mothers were willing for them to pay ten. The reply was: "Sure! Yes!"

LOCAL READERS ASK MORE ABOUT COOPER

Lively Interest Taken in the Account of His Work Printed in this Paper Last Week

Big Demand for the Cooper Remedies at F. P. Stone's Drug Store Causes Much Comment

For the past several weeks the famous Cooper Remedies have been selling in quantities that far surpass anything ever introduced here. Mr. F. P. Stone, the local agent, says he has never before handled remedies that proved to be so popular. There seems to be no abatement to the interest displayed by local people in the work of Mr. Cooper in Chicago, the following account of which is from the Journal of that city. During the past two weeks hundreds of voluntary testimonials have been given at Cooper's headquarters, The Public Drug Company, 150 State street, on efficiency of the Cooper preparations for deafness, stomach complaints, rheumatism, and as a general spring tonic. Among the recent callers was Mrs. Emma Stanley, living at 713 Washington Boulevard. She told her story in a most convincing manner, and many persons who stood around her, endorsed all she had to say in praise of the Cooper remedies. She said:

"Perhaps I had the most complicated case that Mr. Cooper has had to deal with. I was troubled with both deafness and stomach complaints. I don't know that one thing had anything to do with the other, but I do know that I tried many patent medicine preparations without result. I was so deaf that I could not hear a clock tick and my stomach was in such wretched shape that I could not enjoy a meal that I ate. I was very nervous and could hardly sleep. I had a roaring noise in my ears and dancing spots before my eyes. I felt very bad and weak. One day I heard about the Cooper medicine and decided to try it. I have just started on my fourth bottle and the improvement in my case has been really wonderful. My nerves have been quiet-ed, my hearing is much improved, and I feel like a new woman.

"I cannot say too much for these wonderful remedies, for they have made me well again, so that I may now enjoy life like I used to before I was sick."

Among the many callers yesterday was Mr. George P. Lutz, 300 Center street, who had been a sufferer from stomach trouble for many years. He said:

"I suffered several years from indigestion and stomach trouble. At times I was very weak and nervous, had dizzy spells, headache and felt tired and miserable nearly all the time. Sleep at night gave me no strength and I was always tired in the morning. My appetite was also impaired; once in a while I could eat a good meal, but most of the time I had no desire for food.

"One day I saw the advertisement of Cooper and read of his remedies. I went at once to get the medicine, and after I had taken a few doses I was relieved of an enormous tapeworm. Now I know what caused my suffering. My stomach feels as easy now as if a great weight had been removed, and my health improved rapidly. I have a good appetite and am completely restored in strength.

"I am very thankful to Mr. Cooper for all that his medicine has done for me, and I heartily recommend it to all persons who feel exhausted, and are probably troubled as I was.

"It has done all that has been claimed for it in my case and has helped me where all other medicines failed." Hundreds of people are daily calling to see Mr. Cooper with the same story of restored health, strength and happiness, which only proves that all that has been said and written about the medicine is undoubtedly true.

HARRISON.

How Should Sunday School Be Carried On? J. D. Winship, secretary of Cumberland Co. S. S. Association, gave a very interesting talk at the Free Baptist church last Sunday evening. His subject was "How a Sunday school should be carried on." He began with the cradle-roll and spoke of each department, its officers and teachers and their respective duties. He emphasized the cradle-roll as one of the best ways in which to get the parents interested. The young men's Bible class was another point to which he called particular attention.

Mr. Winslip advanced the idea of calling the Sunday school the Bible school. He advised the teachers to study the lesson a little each day and then leave the quarterly at home Sunday and just have the Bible.

Mr. Winslip seemed to be thoroughly acquainted with his subject and if our schools should carry out the good suggestions he made there is no doubt that we should see a change for the better.

The Two Invinibles

Cod Liver Oil and Iron.

Cod liver oil and iron in some form or other are prescribed by physicians the world over, more than any other two remedies the world has ever known, for anemia or poor blood, weakness, convalescence, and all wasting and pulmonary diseases.

Iron, because it is the basis of the blood and without a sufficient amount the blood is impoverished, watery, pale and impure.

Cod Liver Oil, because it contains curative and reconstructive qualities greater than that possessed by any other medicinal agent.

In Vinol, modern science has given to the world a combination of these two world-famous tonics—Cod Liver Oil and Iron, but shorn of all useless oil or disagreeable features.

Vinol is made by a scientific extractive and concentrating process from fresh cods' livers, combining with peptonate-of-iron all the medicinal, healing body-building elements of cod liver oil, but no oil.

As a body-builder and strength creator for old people, delicate children, weak, run-down persons, after sickness, and for Chronic Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, and all throat and lung troubles, Vinol is excellent.

We ask Norway people to give Vinol a trial. It won't cost anything unless it gives satisfaction. Frank P. Stone, Druggist, Norway, Me.

Supreme Judicial Court.

Charles A. Howe was recalled and Mr. Swasey through the cross examination asked Howe at whose request he made the measurements relating to the blast spots found in the vicinity of the explosion, and witness said that it was at no one's request.

For what purpose did you make them? asked Mr. Swasey.

So that I would know.

Was it important that you make a memorandum of these measurements?

For a long time the witness hesitated and finally said that he did not understand the question and Judge Whitehouse put it to him by asking why he made the measurements. Witness said because he wanted to be sure of them.

On re-direct the county attorney asked witness if he meant it to be understood by the answer in regard to the piece of fuse found in the roadway, that it was not there at the time of his search? And he answered that what he meant to convey was that it was not seen by him at the time of his first search.

James W. Gibbs, workman at the mines, testified that on the day of the explosion he secured dynamite for use at the Crystal out from Everett, and told Everett there would be no need to put any dynamite in the little house as they would not need any. The dynamite which he secured that day was taken from the big dynamite house farther up the hill. On his arrival at the works next morning Everett told him that Radcliffe had come to the mine the night before and had been blown all to hell.

A few days after the accident he had said to Everett, "You act nervous," and Everett replied, "My God, why wouldn't I." One day Everett had caught witness around the neck and said, "G—d—y, I've got a mind to kill you," and then laughed.

On cross examination, a great many questions and answers which had been put to witness at the preliminary hearing in the former trial, together with his answers which were at variance with those made Thursday morning were read to witness by Mr. Swasey, and he said he could not remember of making such answers.

Llewellyn Lewis of Paris, another workman at the mine, found a piece of burned fuse about six feet west of a hole made by the explosion. He smelt of it and detected the odor of burned salt petre.

On cross-examination he was asked if Everett did not take his place at the mine, and said he did not so understand it.

You were discharged, weren't you? asked Mr. Swasey.

No, sir.

Why did you get through?

I was laid off.

To prove that money was the motive was accomplished by the introduction of the insurance policies upon the life of Radcliffe and the papers showing where they had been assigned to Everett.

Francis Wilson worked with Everett at the Crocker Hill mine in the winter of 1907, and Everett had told him that inside of two years he would own the best farm at Paris Hill.

Sidney Thayer and Alva A. Swift lived near the mine and feared the explosion. Radcliffe was not at their home at any time during the day of the explosion. Emulus Benson succeeded Everett as caretaker at the mine. He described conditions as he found them there after the explosion. His description was not at variance with that of preceding witnesses.

Solomon C. Buck, uncle of the dead boy, said his nephew was not at his house the night of the explosion. Several other witnesses, living near the mine, testified likewise.

George E. Drake, cousin of Radcliffe, said that in 1905, Everett was at his place at Walker's Mills and said that the officers were after him for blowing up a well and that Eddie Radcliffe was against him. Everett, said witness, said that if Ed went against him, he and his folks would be G—d—y sorry.

On cross-examination he said he didn't know just when it was but thought it was in the spring. He didn't know that afterwards Radcliffe lived with Everett and they were good friends.

Dr. Franklin C. Robinson of Bowdoin College had examined the stain found on Radcliffe's knife and said it was human blood. Had examined the man's stomach and found that it contained undigested potato, pork, apple and apple skin. Also found about one-quarter ounce of alcohol.

On cross-examination he said that from two to three hours are required to digest pork and he didn't think there was sufficient alcohol in the stomach to retard the digestion.

Dr. B. F. Bradbury of Norway assisted at the autopsy upon the remains of Radcliffe. Body was severely bruised and lacerated but not sufficiently to cause death. The left foot had been blown away. Found a cut on throat. It started about a quarter of an inch to the left of the median line and extended to the right of it for about an inch and three-quarters. At extreme right, it was upward and inward for about half an inch, then turned and went directly across the throat.

This wound was made with a sharp pointed instrument, having a flat back. It penetrated 2 1/2 inches into the throat. It cut the artery of the tongue, and the muscles of that organ and the right wing of the thyroid bone, and the membrane of the third vertebra. To make this cut, knife must be held almost horizontal and slightly upward.

Found a little congestion of the brain and when opened skull detected odor of alcohol. Heart was sound and nearly empty. Lungs congested and dark. Each contained watery serum at bottom and bloody froth at top. When he cut the stomach from gullet, preparatory to sending to Dr. Robinson, pieces of undigested apple came out of the gullet. They were accompanied by a smell of alcohol.

On cross-examination, witness said that under certain conditions the cut might be sufficient to cause death. One of these conditions would be unconsciousness. In such an event death would come in 2 or 3 hours. His reason for saying that wound was made with an instrument having a flat back, was because the right end of the cut was ragged.

Dr. J. G. Littlefield, physician who saw Radcliffe the night of the explosion, said he saw cut in throat at 11 p.m. Assisted at autopsy. His statement of disclosures at autopsy was identical with those of Dr. Bradbury.

Dr. John F. Thompson of the Maine General Hospital, had had experience with knife wounds. He had examined the cut in Radcliffe's throat and gave it as his opinion that the wound was made with an instrument similar to Radcliffe's knife.

I AM A MOTHER

How many American women in lonely homes to-day long for this blessing to come into their lives, and to be able to utter these words, but because of some organic derangement this happiness is denied them.

Every woman interested in this subject should know that preparation for healthy maternity is accomplished by the use of

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

Mrs. Maggie Gilmer, of West Union, S. C., writes to Mrs. Pinkham: "I was greatly run-down in health from a weakness peculiar to my sex, when Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me. It not only restored me to perfect health, but to my delight I am a mother."

Mrs. Josephine Hall, of Bardonia, N. Y., writes: "I was a very great sufferer from female troubles, and my physician failed to help me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound not only restored me to perfect health, but I am now a proud mother."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

This wound might have been made by a flying missile, but in his opinion, it was not. Had it been he should have expected to have found the missile in the wound.

Is it your opinion, doctor, that the wound was self inflicted, asked Mr. Barnes.

My opinion is that it was not self inflicted, without intent. It seems quite obvious from the nature of the wound that it was made with intent.

Dr. Charles D. Smith, also of the Maine General Hospital, testified briefly with reference to the food found in the stomach. Fred Harding and Joseph B. Toole said that Radcliffe was afraid of dynamite. This closed the State's direct case and the county attorney announced that the prosecution rested.

Friday was occupied by Attorney Swasey's opening for the defense and the testimony of Mr. Batchelder, superintendent of the mine at the time of the explosion, relative to the employment of Everett, the stock of dynamite on hand, construction of buildings connected with the plant and prospecting on Crocker Hill.

Francis Wilson who testified on Thursday, was recalled and stated at the time of his giving evidence the previous day, he had not been sworn. The oath was administered and witness repeated his testimony of Thursday.

Mr. Swasey called eight witnesses, among them being John Clifford of Lewiston who has been called as an expert on dynamite.

Walter L. Gray testified to witnessing the assignment of the $1,000 life insurance policy to Everett. He also told of breaks which were made at the building on the mine while he was in charge of it.

Henry R. Batchelder of Washington, N. H., in charge of the mine, said that Everett went to work there in the summer of 1906, as a common workman, and later was put in charge of the dynamite and finally became caretaker, and remained in the employ of the concern until his arrest. Witness knew of breaks which had been made in the building at the mine. He visited the mine at the time of the explosion. He said that the odor of burned powder would remain in the mine for two or three hours under favorable conditions.

State exhibit No. 12, a piece of fuse found in the road near the scene of explosion, was shown witness and he said in his opinion it had been exposed to the weather for a long time, weeks or months.

Exhibit 13, another small piece of fuse found near the scene of the explosion, he said in his opinion had been much longer exposed to the weather than exhibit 12. He had given Everett instruction to watch all persons coming onto the property at night, and if he could not catch them in the act of committing some offense, if they committed no offense not to molest them.

Dr. Edmund and John D. Clifford of Lewiston were the two witnesses of the afternoon session. Both were called as experts on dynamite.

Turnkey Farren of the jail was then called and gave some information concerning some exhibits. He was followed by Charles Colby, who identified Radcliffe's knife. On cross examination he denied that Charles Harlow ate supper at his house on the night of the explosion, but he did on the preceding night.

P. W. Everett, son of the respondent, had found a piece of burned fuse on the mine property 200 feet north of the scene of explosion on the 17th of November after the first trial of the case.

Charles Harlow, one of the witnesses of Friday afternoon, was recalled and said that on the night of the explosion when Radcliffe took the Colby supper table, Radcliffe took two apples from the plate.

Superintendent Batchelder of the mine was recalled and testified that on the Saturday after the explosion, Everett had told him at Mr. Brown's that the assignment on the policies of Radcliffe had been given to protect him for money advanced to pay the premiums; also that they did not crumble 90 per cent. dynamite in their hands.

On cross examination he said that Everett's statement, relative to the insurance assignments, was made as a result of inquiry by him.

Everett, morning Everett was called. He said he was 36 years of age, had been in Paris 25 years and had been a farmer, doing other kinds of work. He went to work at the mine as a common laborer in 1906 in May. Later became caretaker and had charge of the dynamite. Explained the construction of the little dynamite house, and said that it had two shelves on the inside. They were eight inches at the right of the door as you entered. On the lower shelf were kept boxes in which was dynamite and electric caps. On the upper shelf were steel and a pile of nails of various sizes.

In one of the boxes there were six sticks of 60 per cent. dynamite. In the other were two sticks of 80 per cent. and some small pieces. In the third box were the caps. One large dynamite house had been entered and 47 sticks of dynamite taken from it. These were afterwards found under the house.

Witness was here shown the shoe taken from Everett's right foot in the sole of which was wire nail, similar to the nails on the floor.

On the day of the explosion he had been to the large dynamite house and got dynamite for Howe and Gibbs but did not tell them there was some dynamite in the little house.

Witness knew Radcliffe from the time he was a boy of six years and had employed him a good deal. The last time was in 1905 when Radcliffe worked for him four months and 12 days. It was during this period that the first insurance policy of $1,000 was taken out. It was done at the respondent's suggestion. The assignment of the policy was made to protect Everett for money advanced to pay the premium. It was a 27-year policy.

On the 12th of June $2500 was taken out by Radcliffe without Everett's knowledge but was later assigned to him for the same reason as the first policy. Radcliffe was at the mine on Sunday, May 5, 1907, and stayed about two hours. He never drank there.

Witness said he sent to Kentucky for 14 quarts of whiskey for Gibbs and Howe and others. Out of the whiskey, he, Everett, got one-half pint and never sold liquor. At the cook house he had some whiskey of his own and some maple syrup in long neck bottles. At the night of the 12th of June, witness said that Radcliffe was on the property and was followed by him but he did not take anything or commit any mischief.

On the night of June 12, the night of the explosion, witness was attracted to the stable by the noise of the horse doing nothing wrong there, but was convinced by the attitude of the animal that some person was on the property. He went to the cook house, put on a pair of rubbers, took his rifle, which he loaded with 5 cartridges, and went to the mill, where he saw a man and followed him around until they reached the little dynamite house.

The man went into the house and came out, lighted a match, looked around and went back into the house. A short time later the man came out, lighted another match and then went back.

This time Everett slipped up to the door and fastened it with planks. Then he started for the mill to notify the office at Paris Hill. From the man's swearing, after the door was locked he recognized the voice of Edgar Radcliffe. As he reached the mill the explosion occurred. He notified Mr. Winslow and returned to the mill. He did not go to the party from Paris Hill until after the explosion.

Radcliffe owed him money besides what he had paid on the insurance. "I want to ask you, Mr. Everett," said Mr. Swasey, "if on the night of the 13th day of June, 1907, you used any violence on the body of Edgar L. Radcliffe?"

I did not, sir.

Did you assault with a knife or any other weapon Edgar L. Radcliffe?

Never.

Did you ever make threats against Edgar L. Radcliffe?

Never in this world, sir.

Did you on the 13th of June, 1907, with force and arms murder Edgar L. Radcliffe?

Never.

Cross examination—Everett admitted writing a letter on June 17th to the insurance agent inquiring as to whom the money of the insurance policy belonged and said that he did this because he didn't understand who would have the handling of the money. He had seen counsel before writing this letter but not with reference to the insurance. He consulted the lawyer in regard to the blowing up of Radcliffe. Had expected to be arrested because it was generally thought around the Hill that he would be.

He claimed that Radcliffe had the second policy for $1,000 increased to $2,500 without his knowledge. He said that between the middle of April and the middle of June, Radcliffe was on the property six times. Of these two were in the day time and four at night.

Radcliffe had never eaten on the premises. On one of the night visits, Radcliffe was so drunk that he, Everett, helped him home.

Found True Remedy.

Frank Kimball Sure Mi-o-na Will Cure

Indigestion.

In no other way can you so quickly, so readily and so positively stimulate the stomach to good health as by using Mi-o-na. Frank Kimball, proprietor of the Noyes Drug Store, feels so sure that this remedy will restore to health every person suffering with stomach troubles that he sells it under a guarantee to refund the money unless it cures. This shows conclusively its superiority over the ordinary old-fashioned digestives.

The underlying cause of most nervous debility, headache, sleeplessness and melancholy is faulty nutrition, the result of a weakened stomach and inactive bowels. Mi-o-na strengthens the stomach muscles, regulates the bowels and thus makes digestion easy and natural.

A 50-cent box of Mi-o-na lasts a couple of weeks, and will ward off a dozen attacks of indigestion and bring good health to the weakest stomach. 12-13

Aunt Patty's Plain Talks.

When I hear some pert young man or woman (and as a rule they are very young) sneering and making flippant remarks about old women, I often think that they, as well as people in general, are more indebted to old women than they would be willing to acknowledge for hard work without compensation is their portion.

Who makes and keeps the fire burning at home, and does the drudgery that daily living makes? Old women.

Who spends weary days and nights of tiresome vigil for you when sick? Old women.

Who are forbearing, patient, kind, and would gladly warn the younger ones of the snares and pitfalls spread for their unwary feet? Old women.

Who from long years of experience can see rocks ahead that your unaccustomed eyes fail to discern? Old women.

They feel the slights and sneers even more than the young, who cannot realize how hard it is to be set aside because they are one of the old women.

Gems of Thought—Selected.

The great man is he, who chooses the right with invincible resolution; who resists the secret temptation from without and within; who bears the heaviest burdens cheerfully; who is calmest in storms, and most fearless under menaces and frowns; and whose reliance in truth, on virtue, on God is most unflinching.

No act characters are formed in this world without suffering and self denial.
Our best doing is our best enjoyment.
Opinions alter, manners change, creeds rise and fall, but the moral law is written on the tablets of eternity.

BETHEL.

Mrs. E. H. Pratt and baby boy of Oakland have been stopping a few days with her parents, A. W. Grover and wife.

Our soldiers' monument has been erected on the heater between Mechanic and Main streets. It is made of granite 21 feet in height, the figure being a private soldier in full uniform with musket, at rest. Our citizens are proud of it.

Several in this vicinity have been hauling lumber to the chair factory to be sawed for home use, thus beautifying our homes in this lovely valley of the Androscoggin.

A letter from the widow of late Capt.
G. C. Pratt says her health is so much improved that she soon hopes to return to her old home. She has been staying with her brother, Charles Penley, a veteran of the Civil War. She and two brothers are the only surviving members of the large family of Joseph and Lovina Penley of South Paris. The writer remembers in early childhood of living with her grandparents on the old farm and Mrs. Sarah Pratt (nee Penley) was then a young woman of fine appearance.

It was then she formed the acquaintance of G. C. Pratt who afterwards she married and became a soldier in the Civil War. Her brother, Charles Penley, also enlisted then. Charles is still living, but her husband has passed to the ranks beyond where the old soldiers are fast hastening and it behooves the younger generation to remember who risked their lives to save our flag and bring us equal rights and freedom.
